

AWFUL SCENES STAIN RUSSIA

Even School Girls Are Knouted By The Brutal Cossacks in Warsaw Today.

SEVEN HUNDRED KILLED AT BAKU

Frightful Massacres Which Result From The Present Labor Troubles in Russian Cities--

More Will Follow.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.]

Copenhagen, Feb. 23.—The third Baltic fleet, which was anchored near the Skaw yesterday, sailed to the westward this morning. A dispatch from Warsaw states in a fight between the girls of the high schools and the police, the Cossacks were called out and drove the girls and their mothers home with knouts. The schoolboys fought the police and Cossacks, in defense of the girls, three hundred in number.

Awful Slaughter

Berlin, Feb. 23.—The Vorwaerts reports seven hundred persons were killed as a result of the street fight at Baku.

Railways Tied Up

The railways converging in Warsaw are completely tied up today. The strikers have destroyed four locomotives.

Bless the Remains

Moscow, Feb. 23.—The ceremony of blessing the body of the Grand Duke Sergius was performed at ten this morning. The Kiev regiment furnished a guard at the Chaudoff monastery, where the funeral services were held. Immense crowds thronged the streets and troops were present everywhere.

Over in London

London, Feb. 23.—A Reuters Warsaw correspondent reports that a mob smashed the windows of five factories this morning, forcing the men to quit work. The company of infantry fired on the strikers. The result is not known.

MAY FAIL TO PASS RATE LEGISLATION

If Administration Does Not Accept Amendment Making Commission Elective—Other Changes.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Feb. 23.—Aside from getting in new bills, the present session of the legislature has accomplished little. The present week is developing few elements of interest, but next week will be crowded full. The hearings on the railroad rate commission will occupy the attention of the committees of the assembly and senate on railroads, sitting jointly. The railroads have by no means lost hope of seeing the session close without a commission act being written upon the statute books. At the close of the campaign last fall it was predicted that they would use their influence to secure the enactment of a mild measure, as all the leading parties in the field had declared in their platforms in favor of some kind of a railroad commission. It is now whispered in chamber and corridor that the railroads will endeavor to secure the defeat of all such legislation through the refusal of the conservative-minded members to vote for the radical enactment demanded by the administration. It appears impossible, to many careful observers, to get a radical, appointive, rate-making bill through the senate and unless the administration accepts amendments making the commission elective and with mild powers not much more than now possessed by the railroad commissioner, all this legislation may fail. There is reason to believe that the railroads will argue stoutly in direct opposition to the Hatten bill, rather than pray for diluting amendments. The matter of railroad legislation is the chief theme of speculation at present and friends of the various interests speak with assurance that their respective ideas will prevail in the resultant statute.

FINDS VERDICT FOR THE RUSSIAN TRAWLER CASE

English Papers Are Very Much Pro-Russian In Their Announcements Today.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.]

London, Feb. 23.—A strong chord of indignation is sounded by the London daily newspapers this morning over the semi-official statement given out in Paris relative to the decision of the North sea commission giving to Russia the victory, but it is still hoped that the publication of the full text of the commission's report may modify the impression produced by the preliminary version, which is one of intense disappointment.

The Daily Mail goes so far as to declare that the decision has dealt a death blow to arbitration. Some of the newspapers blame the government strongly for ever consenting to subject such a matter to arbitration, while some of the government organs find cold comfort in the fact that the country by doing so avoided war with Russia.

No question is raised that the decision must be respected and Great Britain's share of the heavy costs will be usefully paid, but it is considered that the decision leaves the question of a neutral's right on the sea in a deplorably unsatisfactory state and creates a dangerous precedent.

Merchant Ships Are Unsafe.

The Morning Post says: "A new dogma of international law is thus established, under which the commander of a belligerent fleet may attack and destroy neutral unarmed vessels without any other plea than that he conceived his ships might be in danger. This doctrine is so monstrous and inconceivable that we can only yet hope the official report will give a different reading."

Just before parliament rose last night, replying to the question whether any precaution to protect the fishing fleet in the North sea during the passage of the third Russian Pacific squadron had been taken, Premier Balfour said that his majesty's government placed implicit reliance on Russian assurances that the czar's government had taken every precaution to guard against a recurrence of any such incident, and that special instructions had been issued to the whole Russian fleet with this object in view.

GARFIELD PROMISES TO HAVE THE REPORT READY SOON

Says Congress Should Have It Before It Adjourns.

Washington, Feb. 23.—Commissioner Garfield of the bureau of corporations today gave his assurance that the beef trust report will be in the hands of congress before adjournment.

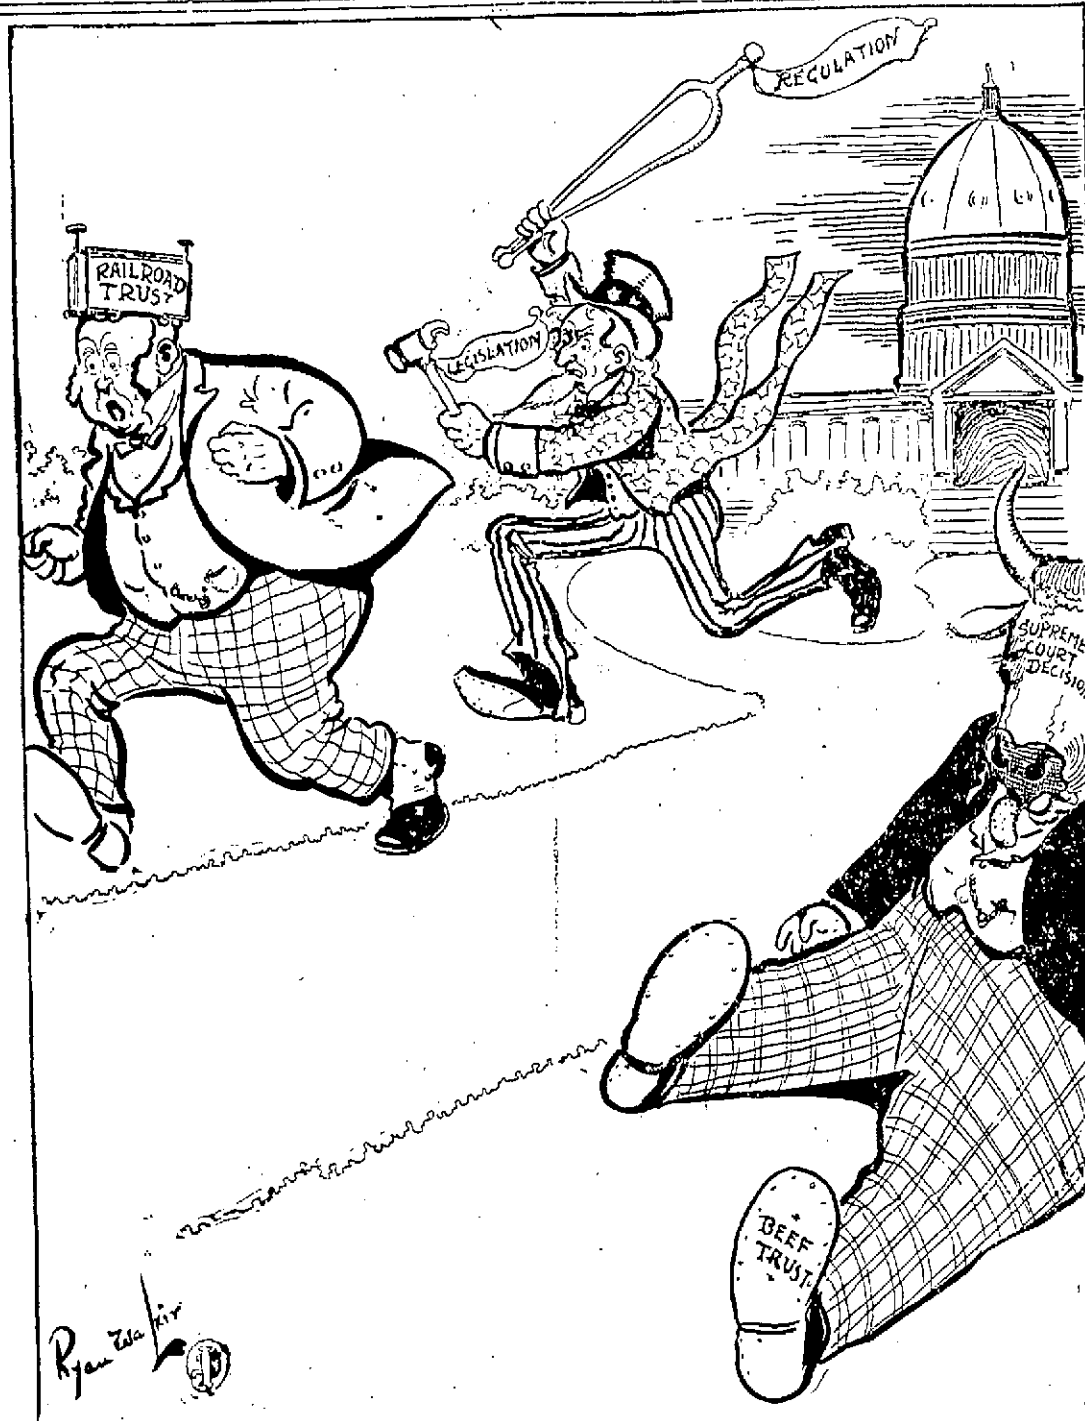

Paris, Feb. 23.—This afternoon the Milwaukee architects are airing their grievances before the joint committee on the capitol and grounds. They claim that Cass Gilbert, who won the first prize for the architecture, ignored the instructions of the commission and planned a palatial edifice far beyond the figure set as a limit of expense. Senator Smith wants the capitol building committee to repair and restore the old capitol. Through his efforts the committee on federal relations today introduced a bill to appropriate $500,000 to the commission for this work. The senate passed three bills, the only important one being that of the committee on forestry to suspend the sale of state lands in contemplation of the creation of a state forestry reserve. Senator Hudson demanded a roll-call and the bill passed with seven negative votes—Hudnall, Noble, Rogers, Smith, North, Randolph and Wolf. A large number of petitions have come in protesting against spring shooting; favoring the Morris county option law, and favoring the anti-cigarette bill. The assembly passed the Turner bill exempting undertakers and veterinary surgeons from jury duty. The Norcross bill to repeal the inheritance tax law was killed.

TO MAKE MOTION FOR A REHEARING

Insurance Commissioner and Attorney General Will Ask Court to Re-open Equitable Hearing.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Feb. 23.—Insurance Commissioner Host and Attorney General Stundevant are preparing to make a motion before the supreme court for a rehearing of the Equitable Life distribution of surplus case. They will represent that the decision filed Tuesday in favor of the insurance company did not dispose of all the points raised in the trial of the issue and on that ground will ask the court to reopen the matter and render a decision covering these points.

Russia Begins To Think That She Can Defeat The Japs After All.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.]

Berlin, Feb. 23.—The German court has been advised the czar has decided to continue the war on the ground that the domestic situation is now under control. It is said to be the judgment of the chiefs of the army that Oyama not only cannot defeat Kuropatkin, but stands in danger of defeat himself. The fact of the military situation and love of country and the arguments of expediency are all said to be in favor of pressing the war hopefully.

ROOF OF THEATER COLLAPSES

Owner Is Killed by Defective Truss During Reconstruction.

Marysville, Cal., Feb. 23.—The roof of a building being reconstructed for a theater collapsed on account of a defective truss. A number of workmen and others were in the building at the time. A. Merry of Sacramento, proprietor of the theater, was killed and Guy Putman and Charles Bagge, workmen, were seriously hurt. Several other workmen were rescued by the police unhurt. Merry was well known.

MORE BODIES IN ALABAMA MINE

Eighty-Three Had Been Taken Out Up to Noon Today—Sad Sight.

Birmingham, Feb. 23.—Up to eight o'clock this morning eighty-three bodies of miners had been taken from the Virginia mine. Seven more corpses are in sight and will be taken out soon. It probably will be the middle of next week before the work of pumping out the mine is complete and the bodies recovered.

ARMY MEASURE CAUSES DEBATE

Amendments In The Lower House Cause Considerable Discussion Among Members.

GROSVENOR MAKES GRAVE CHARGE

Action Of The Upper House Is Characterized As Being In The Interest Of Graft And Corruption.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.]

Washington, Feb. 23.—The house

Wednesday rejected that part of the senate amendment to the army appropriation bill affecting the pay of Gen. Nelson A. Miles. The whole bill was sent back to conference.

The discussion provoked some heated remarks, during which Mr. Grosvenor characterized the senate's amendment as being in the interest of graft and corruption.

Mr. Ames (Mass.) insisted on an agreement to the senate amendment regarding retired officers serving with militia regiments, amended so as to make it effective Jan. 1, 1906.

While supporting the amendment, he referred to the appointment of Gen. Miles as inspector general of Massachusetts, and said it was a political one. Had Gov. Douglas had the best interests of the millions of Massachusetts at heart the appointment would not have been made, but a younger man would have been selected.

The amendment, he said, was favorable to Gen. Miles, who had accepted the appointment in good faith and in the belief that he would receive his full pay.

Unfair to Gen. Miles.

Mr. Hull declared the attempt to put the whole fight on Gen. Miles as unfair to the house and to the general himself. He would rather have the bill fall than yield to the clamor raised by retired officers in their attack on the treasury.

The amendment of Mr. Ames was supported by Mr. Thayer (Mass.) because, he said, it would become effective after Gen. Miles' term had expired.

Mr. Grosvenor (Ohio) opposed the senate amendment. He said there never had been so foul an attempt to influence legislation "in the direction of graft, pure and simple," or to bring forward the name of a distinguished man and cry out persecution against him. He did not know that Gen. Miles was involved "in this graft." If the senate amendment was adopted, he maintained, it would put millions into the pockets of gentlemen "already munificently provided for and doing nothing."

Mr. Hay (Va.) also opposed the amendment.

The senate amendment as amended by Mr. Ames then was disagreed to, and the bill was sent back to conference.

Calls Senate a Tomb.

Availing himself of the license of general debate, Mr. Grosvenor (Ohio) pleaded for an efficient merchant marine. He spoke of the naval victories of Japan over Russia, and said they were accounted for by the fact that Japan had paid careful attention to that subject.

Mr. Sulzer (N. Y.) in reply criticized Mr. Grosvenor and his committee for not bringing in a bill until late in the session. He provoked laughter by inquiring why the bill should not be passed and sent over to the senate, "that tomb of all good legislation." The Democrats, he said, had filed a minority report because they were opposed to subsidies, rather than to discriminating duties.

LIVE BABE THROWN ONTO BED OF BURNING COALS

Two Men and a Woman Enter Boiler-Room, Intimidate Engineer and Put Package into Fire Pot.

Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 23.—G. W. McCaffery, engineer in charge of an eighteen-horsepower boiler in a building on Elmwood street, used to heat several business places, has informed the police that about 2 o'clock Tuesday morning two men and a woman entered the boiler-room and while one man covered him with a brace of revolvers the other threw a package into the fire pot on the red-hot coals.

The woman uttered a shriek as he did so and one of the men threatened her life.

There was one more defection from the forces of Thomas K. Neiderhaus, the republican caucus nominee for United States senator from Missouri.

STANDARD OIL PAYS VERY CLEVER TRICK IN KANSAS

Purchases The Property Of The Independent Companies And Controls The Evidence.

Topeka, Kan., Feb. 23.—The Standard Oil company has begun what is believed to be a movement to buy up every independent property in the Kansas field and at the same time acquire possession of any damaging evidence that might be used against it in the coming investigation.

Mayor E. N. Bowen of Independence, headquarters for the oil trust in Kansas, said that the Standard had acquired ownership of the Consolidated Oil and Gas company and the Interstate Oil and Gas company of Independence. He said it is reported the Standard has bought from I. N. Knapp, the biggest producer in the state, every bit of his oil, gas and tank line property, together with all of his books and records.

Fight for Corporate Life.

This is taken to mean that the Standard has bid defiance to the government and the state, and that from now on it will be open war—a fight for life for the Standard.

Having succeeded in their attempt to establish a state oil refinery and precipitate a struggle with the Standard Oil Company, the "trust busters" in the Kansas legislature have turned their attention to the so-called "salt trust."

These belligerents introduced into the house a resolution providing for the appointment of a commission to investigate the Michigan salt corporation which, it is alleged, controls the Kansas output. It is charged that the concern has advanced the price of salt throughout the West.

File More Charges.

The independent oil men made another move in their fight, which involves the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad. W. E. Connelly of Chanute, for the advisory board of the Kansas Oil Producers' Association, wired Congressman Campbell at Washington charges against this railroad identical with those filed against the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe.

Collision between the railroad company and Standard Oil in the matter of rates is alleged.

The Kansas senate passed a bill providing that a state railroad board shall make changes in freight rates upon due complaint.

BASE BALL AS IT REALLY HAPPENED

FRANK L. SMITH DOES NOT MINCE MATTERS IN HIS ACCOUNTS.

AN AMATEUR TEAM AGAIN

The Beginning of the Great Glory for Janesville as Base Ball Magnates.

(By Frank L. Smith.)
The opening of the M. C. Smith & Son store in the fall of 1872 was evidently of sufficient importance to temporarily divert my mind from the game and no one else seemed anxious to take up the burden. However, just to show that the spirit was strong within me, arrangements were made with the Clinton club to play here July 4th, 1873 and I have a very distinct remembrance of Ora Sutherland and myself arising before sunrise and working on the Milton avenue grounds (two blocks north of the old ones) several hours getting them in condition for use that day. Of course we would have hired that kind of labor done on our own premises, but having been brought up from the ground floor in the baseball business, and thoroughly experienced in that kind of work on ball grounds—it came easy for us. Besides, a regular laboring man wouldn't have known just how we desired those Mayweeds cut. Everything being in readiness, a big rain storm came up, the Clintons did not leave their happy homes and that is the nearest Janesville came to having a ball game in 1873. Our case being similar to that of the boy who led a bull twenty miles to the fair and back without receiving a premium—he had a good run with the bull.

In the Next Year.
But in 1874 the longing for excitement fever broke out afresh and prairie and vacant lot hunting for promising young players was again a pastime.

After rounding up a nine that looked pretty full and included Joe Doe (just returned from Racine college), John Pease and Johnny Sheridan, "the second ward boy," we tied them on Milton, it being the nearest and cheapest place to reach and Milton always had material capable of trying out pretty good nines. It turned out to be quite a spirited contest resulting in a tie after ten innings' play. As I remember it most of Milton's runs were made on balls lost in the high grass and errors by our catcher who made his first and only appearance in that position, but who was quite a factor in the success of the club for some time afterwards. Here is the score:

July 24th the Harvard, Ill. club played us a game on the Milton Ave. grounds, being defeated by a score of 40 to 4.

In the meantime we had changed our nine around considerably, as will be noted in the following score, which for the first time shows runs, base hits, putouts and assists. It might also be well to mention the fact that the underhand throw had superseded straight arm pitching, balls and strikes were called much closer, and the game had "tightened up" in general.

NOT FOR BEST FARM

In the State.

"I saw so much in the papers about the wonderful cures effected by Pyramid Pile Cure, I determined to give it a trial. I bought from my druggist one fifty cent box and used it as directed and by the time I had used the 'pyramid' I was entirely cured; in four days after I began to use the 'pyramids' all inflammation was gone. I was perfectly easy all the time, the excessive discharge stopped at once, and stools became easy and gentle.

"I was unable to get my own firewood for four months, and half the time when I could walk at all I had to walk half bent. I used many pile remedies, salves and ointments, all to no effect until I used one fifty cent box of Pyramid Pile Cure and was cured.

"I would not be afflicted as I was four months ago for the best farm in the state of Arkansas. I can give proof and reference of the wonderful cure to all who are afflicted as I was. Please publish my letter that I may advise the afflicted." W. E. Wallis, Piggot, Ark., Box 26.

The experience of Mr. Wallis is that of thousands of others who suffer for years with the most painful forms of hemorrhoids, or piles, and after trying everything they hear of, give up all hope of a cure and look for temporary relief only. To all such a little book published by Pyramid Drug Co., Marshall, Mich., brings glad tidings, as it tells all about the cause and cure of piles, and is sent free for the asking.

Attention Called.
The attention of those in this city, Portland, Ore., and a few other places who thought the writer was not much of a batter is especially called to the preceding scores as the like may never occur again.

As we were going along in such a nice shape it seemed about time to organize and a meeting was held at the Myers House Aug. 5th for that purpose. No president was elected but R. W. Ellison was elected vice president, E. V. Whitson secretary and treasurer, Philip Newmeyer, R. W. Ellison and E. Miles directors, P. H. Bump, J. B. Doe, Jr., and Frank L. Smith executive committee, and the latter was also elected captain. A game at Beloit Aug. 6th marked the first appearance of John Morrissey in a Mutual uniform and the nine was changed around in other respects as will be seen by the following score:

The catching of Doe and pitching of Sutherland were greatly admired and were the features of the game, not a Beloit player getting a base on balls. The Beloit club made several engagements to play the return game in this city but never made their appearance nor offered an excuse for the disappointment.

Our old friends, the Elkhorns, visited us Aug. 8th and in a game which was said to have been the best ever played in this city, were defeated 13 to 4. The Gazette in its account of the game spoke very highly of the playing of Doe, Sutherland, Ebbets and Pease, and here is the other information for those posted on the scoring of the game:

The Game Itself.
The Gazette in its account of the game said: "The game on the part of the Mutuals was not as good as they are wont to play; still some brilliant field plays were made, among which may be noticed Smith's left-hand fly catch at short, Sheridan's one-hand foul bound catch at third, and Pease's pick-up at first. At the bat Doe covered himself with glory by making an earned home run in the fifth inning."

About this time our club, through the Gazette, challenged any club in the state to a series of games with no takers. The Milton boys however still had an idea they could beat us, but we could not induce them to come here and prove it, so we went up there again on the 27th of August and defeated them 41 to 22 in a poorly played game—in fact no Janesville nine was ever able to play a good game on their public square, but here is how it was done.

At Elkhorn.
The Mutuals visited Elkhorn the next day to play the return game with the nine at that place and for the first eight innings gave one of the finest exhibitions of the season. Doe's catching and Sutherland's pitching were again about perfection and the whole nine seemed determined to make up for the poor display at Milton. The batting was terrific, Doe making a home run and nearly every ball being hit with such force that it was almost impossible for the infielders to handle them. This game also proved to be the last one of a season in which not a single defeat was sustained. The great success of the club was due principally to the battery work of Doe and Sutherland. Pease also held down first base in professional style and the others did better than could be expected of a nine made up of different players in most every game. Here is the score of the last game of 1874:

W. A. JONES IS HUNTING AND FISHING IN MEXICO

Friend of Dr. William Horne, a Famous Hunter, Enjoying Himself in South.

Dr. William Horne has received a letter from W. A. Jones of Oak Park, Ill., who is now located at Tancoco, Mexico. Mr. Jones and Dr. Horne are old time friends and the former is one of the famous hunters of the country, having hunted all sorts of game with varying success in many different regions. Concerning his hunting and fishing in Mexico he says: "I have been down here about a month and have spent a good share of my time in the interior hunting for tiger, but the dogs we had would not hunt them well, still we shot one big fellow that measures eight feet four inches from tip to tip. We also got two deer and plenty of quail and ducks and killed three wild turkeys. A few days ago I went out after tarpon. It was my first experience, as I had never met a tarpon line before. I fished about an hour when I got a good strike and hooked him firmly, and he was no sooner hooked than he shot up into the air, and a pretty sight he was, too. He put up a good gamy fight and it took me just two hours and nine minutes to bring him to the boat and gaff him and when I relaxed the strain on my muscles, they ached and I trembled with exhaustion like one in a chill, and there was not a dry thread on me, for it was a warm day and I perspired freely, but I had the satisfaction of knowing that I had done what few fishermen do, that is, land my first tarpon on my first strike. The fish measures six feet and weighs one hundred and fifteen pounds. Since then I have caught two more and one good sized jackfish. I will not stay here much longer but will push on into the interior and get up into the mountains when I hope to get a shot at a mountain lion and also where turkey will be plentiful."

FOG AND SMOKE OBSCURING GARISH LIGHT CAUSED ALARM

Fog and smoke partially obscuring an electric light sign on North Main street at 10:30 last evening gave some wayfarer the notion that the Burchell building was afire and an alarm was turned in. A large crowd turned out to witness the conflagration.

PEAT INDUSTRY TO BE REVIVED

CHICAGO COMPANY READY TO MANUFACTURE THE FUEL.

W. P. ROBERTS INTERESTED

Sees a Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollar Factory in View for Janesville.

With every community the fuel problem is an important item. Janesville residents who have burned ton after ton of coal during the past cold weather may be interested to learn that once again the subject of developing the peat industry of this country has come into prominence and that there is a possibility that factories may be established in the vicinity of Janesville to manufacture peat at a much reduced figure over the present price of coal. In fact, so far has the matter progressed that a stock company for the exploiting of this industry has been organized in Chicago and stock is even now being sold in this city.

An Old Industry.
The manufacture of peat is an old industry. It was known to the ancient Irish inhabitants and even to-day in Europe, Germany, Austria, Russia, Norway, Sweden, Holland, Belgium, and Prussia large quantities of peat are used in the shape of briquets. By the new process which has been lately discovered through the thought and work of a Chicago civil engineer it has been found possible to turn out five tons an hour of these peat briquets from Wisconsin "bog muck." A stock company has been formed in Chicago with a capitalization of $1,000,000, the par value of each share being one hundred dollars, and under the management of Henry D. Bushnell, who promoted the Tobacco & Chapsin Trading & Transportation company, will start several factories in the immediate future.

Special Machinery.
A special machine has been invented which has been covered by patents, which turns out the "bog muck" into finished peat briquets at the rate of five tons an hour. These briquets are firm and hard and equal to the anthracite coal in heating and durability. The great trouble in the past with the manufacture of peat was that the briquets would crumble in transportation. This has been overcome, making it possible to ship them long distances without danger of injury. Patents in fifteen countries have been obtained to protect this machine and the special method of treatment of the peat and they have been passed upon by the best of patent lawyers and declared to be good for all points in the manufacture.

Visited Chicago.
Dr. W. P. Roberts of this city visited the Chicago exhibit rooms of the company recently and saw the entire process. He was so much pleased with the prospects that he bought a few shares of the stock and was appointed a special agent of the company. He will be glad to explain the workings of the company to those who may be interested and has left specimens of the manufactured peat at the Gazette office, the People's Drug company and the office of Edwin Carpenter, where they may be seen. The doctor will explain to those interested how to investigate the workings for themselves and will make arrangements for special parties of five to go to Chicago to see for themselves what is being done.

After Factory.
Much interest has been taken in Madison over the invention and there is talk of organizing a stock company there to establish a factory. Dr. Roberts is of the opinion that a factory could be established near Janesville to work on the bogs about the city if a co-operative company could be formed. Janesville has almost an inexhaustible supply of peat hidden beneath the surface of the bogs in its vicinity and should such a company be promoted the doctor is sure it would be a success, as the cost of production, according to his figures, would be in the neighborhood of a dollar a ton for the finished product. It is the doctor's idea that a stock company with a capitalization of $150,000 could be formed to develop the Rock county bogs and a supply of fuel for years to come would be brought forth, making Janesville independent of the coal trusts.

Great Advantages.
Some of the advantages as promulgated by Dr. Roberts are that peat is sulphurless, cinderless, sootless and clinkerless and that the ash is but three per cent of the whole, making an ideal fuel. This ash is similar to that of a cigar and should be able to be used as a fertilizer, as are wood ashes. One great thing in the favor of a peat fuel in this country would be the possible establishment of steel factories for the manufacture of Swedish steel, which can only be manufactured by aid of peat fuel, attempts in the past having failed from the lack of this fuel.

You Probably Have the White Scab of Dandruff on It.
If your coat or shoulders have a white dust upon it, the chances are that it is from dandruff. The only way to permanently cure dandruff is to remove the cause, which is the germ. Every toilet table should have such a hair-dressing that contains also the destroyer of the dandruff and hair falling germ. It stops all irritation, keeps the scalp sweet, pure and wholesome. WINNING FAME AS HALF MILE RUNNER

Harold Myers Runs Ahead of Mowry at Madison in Half Mile in Tryout.

Among the athletes who will defend the cardinal in the Chicago-Wisconsin university indoor track meet will be Harold Myers of this city. During his high school career Myers became famous in southern Wisconsin as a quarter-mile and sprinter and last year won the quarter-mile in the state interscholastic at Madison. This year upon entering track work at the university he was advised by Captain Breitkreutz and the coach to try the half-mile and has since been training for that. In the tryout for the Chicago meet the result of would be Breitkreutz, first, expected. The race for the first two places it was thought would be hot and Mowry, though not expected to beat Breitkreutz, was to run him a close second. These two runners, both seniors, are old rivals, having contested against each other in high school days. Breitkreutz is holder of the conference record in the half-mile and doubtless the best in the United States. In the race Myers started with the "bunch." When the announcer cried last lap, Breitkreutz was in the lead, Mowry second and Myers close behind. In the final spurt Myers shot ahead of Mowry, gaining second place. Myers' time for the race was 2:11 flat and Mowry's 2:11 2-5. The time track is exceptionally good for an indoor track which is not in the best of condition. When asked how the time was the lacrum coach, Temple, said, "Great." Myers is yet a freshman and his victory over the senior, Mowry, has given him no little prominence in athletic circles. If he is able to maintain his record in the half-mile he will without a doubt be a member of the two-mile relay team which will run in the Philadelphia meet.

COUNTY NEWS

BURR OAK.

Burr Oak, Feb. 21.—The drilled condition of the roads in this locality was the cause of two runaways last Friday.

As Mr. Marche, and daughter, who reside on the Conway farm, were driving through the snow drifts between the Hubbel and Kealey farms, the cutter upset spilling them out along with a load of groceries. The horse ran as far as Dan McGraw's where it was stopped without damage to either horse, cutter or occupants.

Friday afternoon Bert Dennett and Miss Amy Ross had a tip-over near Mr. T. Fairly's. The lines broke as they went over and the horse ran into a nearby field. When caught the animal was on one side of a fence and the cutter on the other. The only damage done was a pair of broken shafts and a few slight cuts on the horse in coming in contact with the barb wire fence.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Pope and family visited with W. L. Hoague's last Sunday.

Sugar beet men are very anxious looking for farmers to take out beet contracts, as two have been in this vicinity recently. But many of the farmers are slow to draw up contracts feeling that there is not enough in it to pay them so they stick to the tobacco.

Partly cloudy tonight and Friday, and probably showers.

There is a French axiom to the effect that "pleasing wares are half sold;" but in this country, try, we amend it into: "Pleasing wares, well advertised, are nine-tenths sold."

OUR NATIONAL EXPLETIVE?

There has recently been, in English literary journals and elsewhere, some more or less academic discussion of the origin and significance of the common expletive "Great Scott!" We are not sure that any conclusion has been agreed upon, though the weight of evidence and opinion seems to confirm the widely accepted theory that it is of German origin, and is simply an Anglicization of German words meaning "Great God!" At any rate, it is certainly not an Americanism, and has nothing to do with General Scott, but so far as it is used here, was borrowed from England. Perhaps, if the origin and meaning of it which we have mentioned were more generally understood, it would not be so commonly used as an expletive by people to whom its pristine form, "Great God!" would sound like blasphemy.

It might be well, by the way, to consider if it would not be desirable to invent or to adopt some phrase as a "national expletive" other than that which is coming to be generally regarded as such. Every nation has a traditional characteristic expletive. The Englishman insists that the Frenchman is "Sacre!" or "Parbleu!" while the Frenchman is equally ready to ascribe what he frames as "Goddam" to the Englishman. Of course the German has his "Gott in Himmel!" and various others and the Spaniards his mouthfilling "Carra-mba!" while the Italian vents his emotions in "Cospetto!" or "Corpo di Bacco!" Well, they are none of them particularly edifying. But we are inclined to think that the worst of the lot, the most offensive, not only to religious susceptibilities, but to the sense of courteous decency, is that which our transatlantic friends are now regarding and are enshrining in their literature, with quotation marks, as our national expletive.

For, while the profane use of any of the titles of the Deity is more or less offensive, by common consent the worst is such use of the name of the Second Person of the Christian Trinity. It seems to be agreed that, we should treat with especial reverence the name of that soft, meek, patient, humble, tranquil spirit. The first true gentleman that ever breathed.

Yet we must know that one of the most familiar expletives, on the lips of women and children as well as of men, is a profane vulgarization of His name. Whatever the origin of "Great Scott!" there is no question that the "Gee!" which we hear a dozen times an hour is simply a corruption of "Jesus!" and that "Hully Gee!" dear to "tough boys" and to would-be wits, is a like treatment of "Holy Jesus."

If these too common expressions were uttered in their original form, they would sound shocking to most of those who now use them, and would quickly be abandoned. Masking the Divine Name behind mispronunciation or contraction does not lessen the offense. It rather increases it, adding insult to injury. It would be to our present credit if that particular expletive, were at once eliminated from our vocabulary, even from the vocabulary of obnoxious slang, and it would be for our lasting credit if the rest of the world were dissuaded from the notion that the use of it is the invariable hallmark of American speech.

PRESS COMMENT.

Milwaukee Sentinel: Editor Stead says the czar "will go far." Not in a fragmentary condition, it is hoped.

Cincinnati Commercial Tribune: A man is known by the language he uses when he slips on the sidewalk.

Marquette Eagle-Star: The Austrian Crown Prince who was supposed to have succeeded, once made Marinette his headquarters, according to some.

La Crosse Leader-Press: The legislature has been in session six weeks and no factionalism has yet been shown. The bitterness is evidently passing away.

Green Bay Gazette: The lot of the peasants of Russia is undoubtedly a hard one but still the most of them had rather be live peasants than a grand duke.

Superior Telegram: Peoria, Ill., is quarantined on account of smallpox, and it has been suggested that this may interfere with Peoria's usual spring output of pure Vermont maple syrup.

Appleton Post: We should think that Appleton has had enough of State government, in the stopping of a prize fight that was to have taken place there the other night, without wanting "the whole shooting match" right in her "midst."

Rockford Register-Gazette: The census reports indicate that there are 47,229,511 swine in the country. These figures only indicate the genus Sus and take no account of the road hog, the street car hog and other two legged species.

Menasha Record: The Monroe Journal tells us there is nothing in socialism for the farmer. And we add for any one else, unless he is willing first to renounce his ambition to rise above his level and to receive in accordance with his ability to earn.

Chicago Tribune: "The president," says Representative Baker of New York, "has not and does not voice the real sentiment of the people." If the president "has not voice" the real sentiment of the people he hasn't did his duty.

Sheboygan Journal: W. R. Hearst has introduced a bill in congress prohibiting interstate commerce in the product of any monopoly. This would confine the circulation of the Hearst newspapers to Illinois and New York, as he has a monopoly in that particular shade of yellow.

New Richmond Republican: From now on we expect to hear less about "God's Patient Poor." It's now merely a question of more taxes and spending money. A bill has even been introduced in Madison to pay the expenses of the governor's factional suit in the courts last summer.

Oshkosh Northwestern: Editor Starks of The Berlin Journal attended the meeting of the State Press association at Madison last week, and in his write-up in his paper he makes the remark that "The capital makes the state." The capital makes the state, but the state makes the capital. Of course The Journal man needs no reminder that this would not have been the condition of affairs if the capital had been in Oshkosh. Think it over.

El Paso Herald: Hans, the arithmetical horse, Mark Twain's intellectual jumping frog, the highly conversational burro once the property of the late Mr. Balaam, and the ravens that ran a restaurant for Dowie's predecessor in the Elijah business, were not in it for shrewdness with an El Paso hen, claims her exulting owner, that picks out the time when eggs are highest to get a hustle on her in the matter of laying.

La Crosse Chronicle: Ella Wheeler Wilcox, in a recent letter to a yellow journal, leaves us to infer that it is her belief that the success of wireless telegraphy has led to an opening up of communication between earth and heaven. Ella has an idea that Henry George, from his headquarters in the Beyond, is still directing the affairs of the single taxers. The little woman's imagination has lost none of its vividness since leaving Wisconsin.

Green Bay Advocate: The unveiling of the statue of Frances E. Willard in Statuary hall, Washington, is an event which recalls to the world the name of the most famous woman of modern times. With the exception, perhaps, of Queen Victoria. The nation applauds Illinois in giving up to the memory of this magnificent woman one of the two niches reserved for statues of distinguished citizens of that state.

Chicago Record-Herald: The Record-Herald has disagreed with James H. Eckles on divers occasions, but that is the greater reason why it should express its contempt for the guerilla warfare that is being waged upon him by Thomas W. Lawson. Lawson started this game with cowardly innuendoes, and he appears in it only as an irresponsible blather-skito who glories in the role of an assassin of character. When he questions Mr. Eckles' integrity his charges have the opposite effect to the one that he intended. Differences of opinion on matters of politics and economics are forgotten in the thought of the sterling qualities of the accused banker, and he will not suffer in Chicago or in the country from the rhetorical swash of the Boston blackguard and stock gambler.

Madison Democrat: Thomas W. Lawson, the "frenzied finance" writer, is after one Joseph H. Eckles now. It is not likely that Lawson will deal too harshly with Eckles. He is the great financier who, as comptroller of currency, admitted that he knew the Penn National bank of Philadelphia was insolvent for ten months before it collapsed, but he did not close it because he said he feared it would disturb the financial affairs of the country. He did not appear to care how many poor people lost their little savings in the insolvent bank. Unless Lawson says something good of Eckles he will not likely lie about him.

Evening Wisconsin: The austere morality of Washington was without doubt a fundamental part of the great man, which enabled him to achieve for his country what would otherwise have been unattainable. This was that added the final touch to his nobility, commanding the confidence not only of his fellow Americans, but of the rulers and people of other lands, and, joined to his ripe judgment and marked ability, tended to make him a unique figure in history. He scorned all that was base and mean. Rome had her Brutus, but by dipping his dagger in blood, Brutus did not save Rome from imperialism. England had her Cromwell, but Cromwell, though he said, "Take away that bauble!" rejected only the insignia of royal power. The power itself he grasped and wielded while he lived. Washington put aside the substance as well as the emblems of kingly power, and was the presiding officer of the people's constitution which as long as they preserve it will make them the custodians of their own liberties.

FULL ACCOUNT OF CELEBRATION

LONG LETTER FROM CALIFORNIA DESCRIBES BADGER DAY.

JANESVILLE IS REPRESENTED

List of Residents of the Bower City Who Were Present at the Gathering.

Recently the Gazette published a short account of the Wisconsin day gathering at Long Beach, California. A letter from Bertha Proctor gives fuller details and is published, as it may interest many Janesville residents who have friends and relatives in the great "bear" state.

Though far away from our native state, it seemed Saturday as the people from Wisconsin, young and old, assembled at the tabernacle to greet their old friends and schoolmates, that they had flown back to old Rock county for the day. People who had not met for years met then. Such happy meetings! How good it seemed to see home-faces again and to hear the familiar voices. The old scenes were missing, but the scenes about our place of meeting could but help to send away that desire. The old ocean in its roar, the mighty waves dashing on the shore, the mountains covered o'er with snow (reminding one of Wisconsin at present), the distant peaks of Catalina lying peacefully on the deep, flowers blooming about us in the greatest profusion and beauty, all seemed to tell us we had reached a land where happiness should enter into our lives as in our old Wisconsin homes.

In the morning the friends met on the pier, on the beach or in the park. After lunch they gathered at the tabernacle to hear the talks concerning their old homes. The program began by the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" by Mrs. Alice Iman at the piano. Dr. Reid called the meeting to order and gave an historical address on the origin and work of the association. The first meeting was held in 1899. The summer of 1898 parties were camping in the mountains. Mr. Stevens of Long Beach, a real estate man, wanted a region and so invited them to Long Beach the next year. March 7, 1901, they held a mid-winter meeting. August 22, 1901, they held their meeting in the pavilion. At this meeting they had a live badger on exhibition. There were 440 people enrolled. The next meeting was Feb. 12, 1902. That summer they held another meeting Sept. 6th; 332 were enrolled. They decided to have their meetings hereafter Feb. 12. The next address was by Mrs. Voorhan of the National Federation of Woman's club. She spoke of their work in helping the poor children of the McKimley home near San Pedro. We love and honor our states of birth and adoption and we want to have a monument in California.

The next number was a "California Medley" by George W. Sanford. It was followed by great applause. The next address was by the first white child born in Wisconsin, H. C. Morrell. He said that he had spent our better days in Wisconsin, the best state in the union, and our resting days are here. A recitation by Mrs. Kent was followed by an address of Mr. Frank Porter, a prominent lawyer in Los Angeles. His subject was "Why and When I Left Wisconsin." "I left December 20, 1887. It was for my God, not the State's. We appreciate it more now than when we left it. We had a fine motto, 'Forward.' The pioneer symbol was the axe and 'Forward' its history. It hasn't wealth, but it is a happy state, neither poor nor rich, but the middle class. We have come to a land of wealth." He closed with, "Fellow Badgers, I am glad to greet you. Proud of the state from which we come and proud of the state to which we came." Then the election of officers: Pres., Dr. H. A. Reid of Pasadena; V. Pres., Frank Porter of Los Angeles; Sec., Mrs. E. N. Rasmussen, Long Beach; Treas., Mrs. I. W. Stevens, Long Beach; musician, Mrs. Alice Iman.

After this there was an experience meeting. The Wisconsin people were to tell "Why they left, how long they intend to stay, and when they were going back."

Mr. S. Cobb of Janesville said that he came because he had money to come with and would start back when the walking was good.

Mr. J. Cunningham: "Time is lost when we are to go back."

Walter Scott: "The best place is in Janesville; if anything better, we want it. So we expect to stay here."

A lady from Dane county answered by saying: "I left my country for my country's good and I am not going back."

There were 71 from Rock county, 53 of them being from Janesville. The city of Janesville had more representatives than any other city. Those present from Janesville were: Messrs. and Mesdames L. C. Brewer, Jos. Coleman and family, Will Davis and family, G. Stannard, J. E. Scott, J. T. Boynton, Henry Walte, J. Cunningham, Wm. Wright, G. Barker, Squires and daughter, R. W. Dodge, H. Dodge, C. Dodge, J. Proctor, Messrs. S. Cobb, Wilcox, Frank Gray, R. Hollister, W. Carmen, Walter Scott, Harry Morse, Walter Proctor; Mesdames Helvie E. Lawrence, Dr. Butler, Shoppell, Alice Iman; W. T. Van Kirk, Hannah E. Cobb, Evelyn Walte, Mary Cunningham, Gail Lane, Stoddard, Shephell, Mary Van Kirk, Mary Barker, Jessie Dodge and Bertha Proctor.

LOWELL GROCERY WAS BURGLARIZED

Marauder Entered Rear Window Last Night and Helped Himself to $7 in Cash Drawer.

Sometime after eight o'clock last evening the Lowell grocery store on South River street was burglarized by a rather spry individual who broke in a 12x18-inch pane of glass in one of the rear windows opening onto the alley and only a few feet above the ground-level and after wig-wagging himself through the aperture made a raid on the cash drawer in which there had been left about $7 in small change. Nothing else is missing and it is evident that the marauder was merely in search of spending money. He let himself out by the rear door which was found unbolts this morning. The window is in a sort of a cubby-hole made by the piled-up boxes and the shattered pane of glass was not noticed until after the cashier had made the discovery that the money drawer had been emptied. The work is believed to have been done by one of a local gang whose operations have been going on intermittently for some time. Only the small change is left in the cash drawer, the bulk of the money being always conveyed to the safe in the hardware store when business closes at night. The first attempt was to cut the glass but the intruder evidently gave up the attempt in disgust and kicked it in.

PAID VISIT TO LOCAL LIBRARY

ABOUT FORTY EDUCATORS HERE FROM STATE MEETING.

ELECTED OFFICERS TODAY

A Most Successful Gathering of Wisconsin Library Association Held in Beloit.

About forty of the librarians and trustees of public libraries in Wisconsin cities were here today from Beloit, where the meeting of the Wisconsin Library association was held yesterday and this morning, to visit and inspect the Janesville public library. The trolley ride to this city and the visit at the local institution was the last portion of the program for the state meeting. Among those who were here are: Hon. H. P. Bird of Wausau, C. A. Hutchins of Beloit, Henry E. Legler, secretary of the Wisconsin Free Library commission, Miss Bessie Smith of Dubuque, Iowa, Mr. Gould, trustee of the Willmette, Ill., public library, Miss Julia Hopkins of Madison, Miss Kate M. Potter of Baraboo, Miss Sue C. Nichols of Port Atkinson, Mrs. Clara G. Burns of Kenosha, Mrs. W. G. Clough of Portage, Miss Grace E. Salisbury of Whitewater, Miss Minnie Notz of Whitewater, Miss Bohan of Madison, Miss F. Hawley of La Crosse, Miss Edna Nichol of Wausau, and Miss Katherine McDonald of Madison.

New Officers Chosen

At the session this morning new officers of the association were elected for the ensuing year. They are as follows:

President—Dr. E. A. Birge of University of Wisconsin.

Vice-president—Miss Grace Edwards of Superior.

Treasurer—Miss Grace Salisbury.

A very suggestive paper was read by Miss Edna Lyman, children's librarian at Seville institute, Oak Park, Ill., which dealt with the subject, "The Story Hour As an Incentive to Better Reading and How to Conduct It." Reports were heard from various libraries in the state. No business of importance aside from the election of officers was transacted.

Yesterday's Meetings

The annual convention of the state library association opened their sessions in Beloit yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The meeting was called to order by Hon. H. P. Bird of Milwaukee was a hatchet for a gavel, presented the convention by Miss Dotsmann of Milwaukee, president. Bird mentioned the fact that President Harper of the university of Chicago was about to undergo an operation in an effort to save his life and in sympathy for the great educator called on Rev. B. Royal Cheney for words of prayer. Mayor Charles Gault welcomed the visitors to Beloit and in response president Bird complimented Beloit on the hospitality of her people, and the work of the libraries there. Miss Bessie Sergeant Smith, librarian at Dubuque, Iowa, spoke on methods of securing better reading, considering, advertising, book lists, clubs, book talks, exhibits, bulletins, special privilege cards, few or rules, and better editions of good books. Superintendent C. H. Pears of Milwaukee who was to deliver an address on the topic, "What the school needs of the public library," was unable to reach Beloit in the afternoon and delivered his address in the evening. "The Librarian's attitude toward school work" was discussed by F. A. Hutchins of the Wisconsin Free Library Commission and Miss Hannah Ellis, children's librarian at Madison told what the Capitol city library did. Reports from public libraries in the state that are co-operating actively with the schools were then heard.

Evening Session

In the evening session the subject of library extension, getting the books to the people, was discussed by several different speakers with various sub-topics. Dr. E. A. Birge, trustee of the Madison Public Library and James Cavanaugh, trustee of the Gilbert Simmons library at Kenosha took up the subject of "Library Distributing Points" taking into consideration, branches, stations, school duplicate collections, traveling libraries and house to house delivery. The problem of the country readers was thoroughly discussed by Hon. H. L. Ekern, trustee of the Whitewater library. C. W. Graves, trustee of the Virgoqua library spoke on some problems in library administration.

MASQUE BALL OF MODERN WOODMEN

At Assembly Hall Last Evening Was Enjoyable Affair—Charles Frost Had Best Make Up.

Charles Frost and Mrs. G. W. Jones, made up to represent George Washington and Lady Washington, were awarded first prize at the masque ball given by the Modern Woodmen at Assembly hall last evening and William Dickerman, in the feathers and war paint of an Indian chief, was awarded second. The judges were: H. D. Murdoch, C. J. Myhr, and Frank Richards. Many interesting costumes were worn and the carnival scene was an attractive and alluring one when shortly after eight o'clock, Baldwin & Rehfeld's orchestra sounded the opening waltz. A feature of the evening was the exhibition drill of the Foresters' team of sixteen men in full uniform under the direction of Capt. Edward Jones. Visitors were present from several of the neighboring towns and cities. The arrangements were in charge of C. L. Caniff, O. A. Mable, and L. L. Hilton. Frank Voburn, Lynn Whaley, and Michael Birmingham constituted the floor committee.

PRISON DOORS CLOSE ON SEVERIN AGAIN

Man Arrested at Waupun Yesterday Sentenced to Another Year by Judge Fifield.

Before Judge Fifield in municipal court this morning appeared John Severin, the man who was arrested by sheriff Cochrane upon his release from state's prison at Waupun yesterday morning. He was charged with burglarizing the Robert Bryan house in the town of Union, occupied by Mrs. Lillian Haney, on the tenth of September, 1903. When the man waived examination and his trial had been fixed for the 2d day of March, he petitioned for immediate trial and entered a plea of "guilty" to the charge. To the court's inquiry as to whether or not he had anything to say, Severin responded with a simple statement that he had already served eighteen months for a crime committed about the same time as the one for which he was to be sentenced and the assertion that he was intoxicated at the time the deed was committed. He is a tall man with a certain distinction in his bearing, though his facial expression is not prepossessing. He is believed to have come originally from Chicago and he has behind him long prison records extending over twenty years or more in two states. On the recommendation of the district attorney the minimum sentence of one year was given him. Sheriff Cochrane left for Waupun with the prisoner, this noon.

THE SQUAKBOROUGH DEESTRICT SCHOOL

Union Label League Will Give an Entertainment to the Public Tomorrow Evening.

For the first time in the history of the Union Label league in this city a public entertainment will be given by them tomorrow evening in Assembly hall. No admission fee will be charged and an invitation has been extended to everybody. The program has been arranged and will be presented by half of the members under the leadership of Mrs. John R. Horn. Four weeks from the date of this entertainment will be given another by those members of the organization who do not participate Friday evening. This side will be led by Mrs. Gus Baker. Members of the Trades Council, disinterested in the contest, will act as judges and decide which of the two entertainments is most creditable and the side unsuccessful will serve a supper to the winning members. The program tomorrow evening will be: "The Squakborough Deestrick School." Much of the production is original with members of the side presenting it. Local hits will be introduced and a number of new features will be prominent. John Osborn will be the teacher of the school and those who will take other parts are: Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Darrow, Mrs. Lobegard, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Newton, Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Horn, Mrs. John Osborn, Mrs. Charles Hopp, Mrs. G. R. Moore, Mrs. E. H. Kerry and W. S. Kerry.

METHODIST CHURCH PLANS DECIDED ON

Elgin Architects, Turnbull & Jones, Find Favor with Trustees and Building Committee.

Plans for the new Central Methodist church submitted by Turnbull & Jones, architects, of Elgin, Ill., have been accepted by the building committee and board of trustees. Those offered by Architect L. L. Hilton of this city were the second choice of the committees, which speaks well for the local man, inasmuch as four states were represented in the competition. The accepted plans call for a $30,000 edifice of brick with a large and imposing tower at the corner of Pleasant and Franklin streets. There is a roomy basement with dining and lecture parlors, a model kitchen and other apartments. The auditorium is to have a seating capacity of 600.

MINSTREL SKIT NOT PLEASING TO POLICE

A. M. T. Thurston, Composer, Was Driven Out of City Today—Rehearsals by Telephone Henceforth.

A. M. T. Thurston, gleamer of local color for two side-splitting comedy skits to be put on by "Doc" Leslie's Transcontinental minstrels at the Myers next Tuesday evening, was pursued by the police today when the content of one of these farces in some mysterious manner leaked out and came to their ears. Interrupted at the rehearsal, Mr. Thurston did not pause to argue the propriety of making fun of our patrolmen on the stage.

He seized his gold-headed cane and satchel and put for Shopiere. It is stated on good authority, however, that the farce in question will be put on regardless of the wishes of Officers Fanning and Benke and that rehearsals will be conducted by telephone in case Mr. Thurston finds it inexpedient to return to the city. Mr. T. is a gifted composer, hailing from Circle City, Ohio. He had the distinction of writing the new sentimental ballad that is to be sung for the first time on any stage by Henry Cody.

CONVINCING FACTS POINT TO SUICIDE

Additional Evidence Before Coroner's Jury Seamed To Settle Question of Wolfrum's Fate.

It seemed a foregone conclusion from the evidence offered before the coroner's jury sitting in judgment on Anton Wolfrum's death this afternoon that the final verdict would declare that the man took his own life. Dr. Charles Sutherland was the first witness examined. He testified that there were present on the corpse evidences of saliva running from the left corner of the mouth to the coat lapel, indicating that the man was alive at the time he was suspended, inasmuch as the best authorities held that such a thing does not occur after death. This was a strong point, breaking down the theory of possible foul play. The doctor also testified that on testing the stomach for eleven well-known poisons he found no evidence of their presence.

TO INVESTIGATE LEAD PROPERTY

Gazette Is Sending Special Correspondent and Photographer to Galena.

So much interest has been taken in the Fox River Valley Lead and Zinc Mining company, located near Galena, Illinois, by Janesville people, the Gazette plans to send a photographer and special correspondent to Galena to thoroughly investigate the property and make a report to the readers of the paper regarding the value of the mine and the exact conditions. So many Janesville business men are associated with this particular property, including J. J. Monel, Don Farnsworth, W. W. Watt, George S. Parker and several others are contemplating purchasing shares, that this report will be valuable. The mine itself is located a few miles from Galena in one of the oldest lead and zinc fields in the United States. It is near the property owned by Mr. George Sutherland and M. G. Jeffris and is reported to be exceedingly valuable. Mr. Nelson Russell, who is in the city selling the stock of this company, can be found at the Myers hotel. The report of the special investigation will appear shortly in the columns of the Gazette.

Jiu Jitsu Makes Japs Dangerous

The Science Comprises Six Systems and Two Hundred Different Holds. How the Experts Prepare Themselves—Baths and Simple Food.

The Japanese style of self defense, jiu jitsu, has become widely talked about of late throughout the entire country, and hundreds of people are studying its intricacies. Efforts are now being made in Chicago and New York to bring about a contest between jiu jitsu men and leading wrestlers, but as yet the sons of the mikado have not had offers that they consider sufficiently tempting.

The knowledge of jiu jitsu has only recently been made general in Japan. Every soldier, sailor and policeman was taught it as a matter of course, but the upper classes, jealous lest their influence over the populace should wane, tried to keep it to themselves. Of this tendency we have an interesting example in "The Darling of the system, which means "muscle breaking"—a term that does not express the fact. Four years are needed for the full development of the system, years of regular, patient practice, and gradually the pupil begins to feel its influence. There are in all 200 different grips and blows. The most interesting part is that which deals with the daily habits of the student of jiu jitsu.

Water, Rice and Fresh Air.

Twice a day he will bathe if he would imitate his Japanese teacher. A gallon of pure water will be consumed during the twenty-four hours, and he will eat no meat. Rice comes first in importance as an element of diet. Next come vegetables, fish and fruit, meat being scarcely ever used. Fresh air naturally is absolutely essential not only to jiu jitsu, but to good health and vigor in Japan, as elsewhere, and a special study is made of the influence of deep breathing upon the students.

But what will surprise most people is that something most needed beyond all these—equanimity of temper—is essential. The reason of this is that there are too many tricks, which are dangerous to life and limb, to be entrusted to a person whose passions might overpower his judgment. Several of the feats would break bones if carried to extremes.

The Secret.

The secret of jiu jitsu consists of a knowledge of how to grasp an opponent in such a manner that he must submit to be thrown or have the limb which is grasped remorselessly broken. Once this terrible Japanese clutches his adversary by the arm he must fall in the direction the Japanese wishes or have his limb broken.

An expert jiu jitsu wrestler can

Sporting Talk.

T. C. McDowell, a New Ally of Ed Corrigan—Tarpon Fishing.

Thomas C. McDowell is the president of the recently organized American Jockey club formed by Edward Corrigan. "The master of Hawthorne," to wage war on the Western Jockey club. McDowell is one of the best known horsemen in America. He has divided his racing ventures fairly evenly between the east and west and is highly respected in both sections. McDowell comes from the heart of the blue grass region and is a descendant of the most famous of Kentuckians, Henry Clay. He represents the best of the good old time southern element which early became attached to the sport of racing.

In securing his consent to become president of the new circuit Corrigan has made a shrewd move, for no man who has ever been affiliated with racing in the west stands higher among the better class of patrons of the sport. Those who know McDowell and his quiet disposition are surprised that he should in any way take active part in the impending trouble. The weight of his personal influence is likely to be quite a factor.

Tarpon fishing is on in full swing in southern waters. Many large catches have occurred in Florida of late.

Tarpon fishing has become one of the most popular sports of the winter resorts. Sportsmen find plenty of opportunity for excitement in landing the big fish. The tarpon, which is a member of the herring family, is much larger than the ordinary herring or shad, and often grows to be six feet long, weighing in the neighborhood of 150 pounds.

The fisherman who makes an effort to land one of these full grown tarpons, or the smaller ones for that matter, will find a hard struggle on hand before he can get it on terra firma. The tarpon always makes a game fight for liberty and in his struggles often leaps over the boat in which the fisherman sits or struts. In this way the occupants of the boat have been seriously injured by being struck by the tarpon.

The tarpon may be taken with a rod and reel, and this way is sure to result in an exciting experience. Modern Izank Waitons after hooking a tarpon will take plenty of time and be sure to get close to shore before trying to land the fish, so that they can get out of the boat and not be struck by one of the tarpon's jumps.

The tarpon is found only in the warm waters which wash the shores of the southern states. His principal food is other fish, like the mullet, of which he is especially fond. It is thought he learned to jump so far by trying to catch mullet, which are known jumpers. The tarpon is a strong jawed fish, and his mouth opens on the top of the snout, not at the end, as with other fish. As a food the tarpon is best during the winter or early spring.

SAVED BY SHOPMATE.

Wm. Vedder of 9 Ingersoll Ave., Schenectady, Tells How Father John's Medicine Cured His Lungs and Built up His Strength.

"Last fall I had a severe attack of pneumonia and was confined to the house for four months. At the end of that time I was still suffering from a hard, racking cough, from which the doctors could give no relief. I tried everything I could think of or hear of but with no beneficial result. In this condition I was returned to work. One day a shopmate who noticed how I was suffering advised me to try a bottle of Father John's Medicine. I did so and began to get relief at once. I was soon cured of the cough and able once more to take a good night's rest, but fearing that the cough might return I continued taking the medicine until I had used 12 bottles. When I began to take the medicine I was in a very weak condition, but I gained in strength rapidly and am now as strong as ever. I believe my cure was due entirely to Father John's Medicine and I heartily recommend it to all who are similarly afflicted." (Signed) William Vedder, 9 Ingersoll Ave., Schenectady, N. Y.

ELGIN BUTTER MARKET

(Special Telegram.)
Elgin, Ill., Feb. 20.—No offerings for sales. Official firm at 34c. Output of week, 421,990 lbs.

A NOVELTY IN PLAID.

Those blurred designs are far and away the prettiest thing that has been offered in the somewhat overdone shepherd's plaid and small checks. In brown and cream they are particularly soft and becoming, and are seen to excellent advantage in the woolen costume where a fine soft glove, made of a deep brown is used for color contrast and relief. The collarless neck is faced with this, and brown and gold braid, with fancy buttons, makes a pretty trimming. The little blouse is drawn down snugly to the deep swathed centre of suede, two little straps overhanging in front. The sleeve is a welcome novelty with its long cuff that shapes over the hand. The skirt is in pleated gored stitches down over the hips, and then flaring to the plain stitched hem.

PASSES JUDICIAL BILL.

Measure Goes Through the Senate in Just Five Minutes.

Washington, Feb. 23.—Applly illustrating how the senate can transact business when it wants to, the Cullom bill redistricting and reorganizing the federal judiciary in Illinois was passed in five minutes Wednesday. After the Swayne impeachment proceedings ended for the day at 6 o'clock Senator Spooner of Wisconsin secured recognition and from the judiciary committee reported the bill, asking its immediate consideration. Unanimous consent was necessary and nobody objected. The clerk hurried through the reading of the bill, omitting a great deal of it, while Democratic senators, appreciating what was going on, gathered around Senator Cullom and joked with him. The passage of the bill was a marked compliment to Mr. Cullom, and demonstrates his popularity and influence among his colleagues. The bill now goes to the house, where Speaker Cannon will see that it is passed.

Opposes Domingo Treaty.

Washington, Feb. 23.—A protest against the president's construction of the Monroe doctrine was filed with the senate committee on foreign relations by Senator Morgan of Alabama, a member of the committee, who will discuss it later. Mr. Morgan is a staunch advocate of the Monroe doctrine. He is opposed to the San Domingo treaty, however, and does not agree with the president that a firm application of the doctrine imposes upon the United States the burden of acting as a collection agency for European governments. He argues that the United States can consistently prevent European aggression upon the western hemisphere and at the same time permit European nations to collect the debts owed them and their citizens without our intervention.

Reduces Philippine Duty.

Washington, Feb. 23.—With but one negative vote the house committee on ways and means authorized a favorable report on the Curtis bill reducing the duty on tobacco and sugar from the Philippine Islands to 25 per cent of the Dingley tariff. A provision was added specifying that articles subject to the internal revenue tax shall pay the tax upon being placed on sale in this country.

Marine Workers Protest.

Washington, Feb. 23.—A protest from 200,000 marine workers on the great lakes against the transfer of a government dredge from the Atlantic to Lake Michigan was filed with congress by officers of various marine workers' organizations. It is declared that the private dredge owners do the work cheaper than the government, pay higher wages and employ union labor.

PRESIDENT HARPER IS DOOMED.

Head of the University of Chicago is Victim of Malignant Cancer.

Chicago, Feb. 23.—Death has set its seal upon President Harper. When the head of the University of Chicago was operated on at the Presbyterian hospital Wednesday the surgeons discovered that he was suffering from a malignant cancer, which is fast eating away his life. The disease had spread so far that no attempt was made to remove the cancerous growth. The wound was closed and during the remainder of the great teacher's life the X-ray treatment will be used to stay the ravages of the disease. At the utmost Dr. Harper's life cannot span more than a year, and one of the operating surgeons declared that six months is the more likely period of his existence. The surgeons who attended him did not believe it best to impart to the patient the sentence of death they had read at the operation.

FORMING A COMBINE IN SHOES.

Manufacturers Hold Meeting in East to Organize Big Alliance.

New York, Feb. 23.—Nearly every shoe-manufacturing center of the east and middle west was represented at a meeting held in this city for the purpose of organizing the National Association of Boot and Shoe Manufacturers of the United States. The opinion was expressed that former obstacles to an alliance would be overcome and that a permanent organization would be formed and maintained. Various committees, including committees on constitution and rules, were appointed.

Land Fraud Indictments.

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 23.—The federal grand jury has completed its labors in the land and timber frauds in the Redding district and has returned an indictment against Harry W. Miller, Frank E. Kincart and William H. Boren, charging them with subornation of perjury.

Monk Millers Are Killed.

Montreal, Que., Feb. 23.—The bursting of mill stones in the flour mill at the Trappist monastery at Oka resulted in the death of two monks and the severe wounding of an assistant. Brother Marc was instantly killed and Brother Abel died shortly after.

Will Aid Filipino Planters.

Washington, Feb. 23.—With but one negative vote the house committee on ways and means authorized a favorable report on the Curtis bill reducing the duty on tobacco and sugar from the Philippine Islands to 25 per cent of the Dingley tariff.

Asks Cash for Broken Neck.

Sharon, Pa., Feb. 23.—Hugh O. Jones of Sharon has entered suit against the Mahoning Valley Railroad company for $50,000 damages for a broken neck sustained last summer. Jones has almost recovered from his injuries.

Iowa Slayer Is Convicted.

Dubuque, Iowa, Feb. 23.—After being out all night the jury in the case of James Reade, the slayer of Policeman Norton, returned a verdict of guilty of murder in the second degree.

Predict Late Run of Shad.

Gloucester, City, N. J., Feb. 23.—Shad fishermen predict a late run of shad this season. They say the ice has remained in the river so long that it will keep them down the bay.

Fight Due to Death.

Take Charles, La., Feb. 23.—As a result of a free fight with daggers and pistols among Mexicans at Toomey, near the Sabine river, one Mexican lies dead and five were wounded.

OFFICIAL NOTICE NO. 13

North Street Improvement

Published by authority of the common council of the city of Jamesville.

Office of the City Clerk, Jamesville, Wis., February 21st, 1905.

To Whom It May Concern: Notice is hereby given that the city of Jamesville proposes making improvements by extending North street, from the east line of block one, Rockport addition, to the west side of South Jackson street, as now laid out and platted in the fourth ward in said city, at an estimated expense of seven hundred and twenty ($720) dollars, to be paid in whole or in part by an assessment on the following described real estate, in said city, to-wit:

Name of owners. Description. Estate of Daniel Connelly.—Lot one (1), block seven (7), Rockport Add.

Joseph Connelly.—The north one-half of the unnumbered lot lying east of block seven (7) of Rockport addition.

Catherine and Ann Craven.—The west one-half of lots one (1) and two (2) in block one (1) of Rockport Add.

William H. H. Macdon.—The east one-half of lots one (1) and two (2) in block one (1) of Rockport Add.

William H. H. Macdon.—All except the south twelve (12) feet of lot one (1) of block three (3) Railroad addition and a part of the unnumbered lot lying east of block one (1) Rockport addition, being a strip of land about sixty-eight and three-tenths feet in width extending from Jackson street to the alley on the east side of block one (1) Rockport addition and lying north and adjacent to the said proposed extension of North street.

William Kuhlow.—Lot three (3) of block three (3) of Rockport Add.

Now, therefore, all persons interested in the subject matter of such improvement are hereby required to attend the common council, at a meeting thereof, to be held in the council chambers, in said city, on the 20th day of March, 1905, at eight o'clock p. m., when it will proceed to hear the allegations of the owners and occupants of the houses, lots and parcels of land required, and the real estate to be assessed for such improvement so specified as aforesaid, and make such further order in respect to such improvement as it shall deem proper.

By order of the common council. A. E. BADGER, City Clerk.

CHAPTER XXXI.

Mr. Harlan left the house and did not return until long after midnight. When Leslie came downstairs the next morning he had already breakfasted and gone to the office without bidding her good-by. Such a thing had never happened before. It measured the magnitude of her offense in his eyes.

The troublesome proxy lay on her desk where she had tossed it the night before. She sat down and read it through once more. Was she right in hesitating to sign it? Had she not virtually told her own father that she did not trust him? Was she not about to proclaim this publicly? What did she propose to do? Was she to attend this meeting in person and vote against her father, or, at best, vote in his stead? In the one case there would be scandal; in the other ridicule and notoriety. What a story that would make for the newspapers, with pictures of the warring father and daughter, and all the possible and impossible inferences which would be drawn from the facts. He would be a joke down town if she did any such thing as that. But was there any alternative? If she authorized anybody else to represent her, she would only add to the insult and increase the scandal. If she refused to vote at all, her action would embarrass her father, without, perhaps, serving the cause she desired to favor. Chance had placed in her hands a technical right which she feared to exercise practically.

How much did she know of the issues involved? On the one side was a man she had learned to believe in. To believe in very earnestly. But there must be no issue between her father and this man—or any man. If that were the situation, she would instantly decide for the father whose wonderful love had been hers all her life and whom her mother had loved. No, the men, women and children whose health and comfort were at stake formed the real issues. If she voted against them even indirectly, would not the thought of it outlast her life? Her father was opposed to the man who—was opposing the poor and the weak in this contest. Perhaps he did not know this. Perhaps he was altogether ignorant of the true state of affairs. She had told him nothing of what she knew. Possibly, if she reported frankly everything she had heard and suspected, he might investigate and learn why she could not vote against John Kennard—against what she believed to be right. She would go straight to the office and explain the whole matter fully and fairly. Anything was better than this hideous chance of misunderstanding.

Miss Harlan's car moved slowly along Park Row, the motorist beating furiously on his metal gong, and gradually dividing the ever-present group of people which gazes morning, noon and night at the big bulletin board of the "Guardian." As the car stopped at the Nassau street corner, Leslie stepped out and stood for a moment in the knot of idlers staring at the empty blackboard.

A man mounted on a wooden platform leisurely washed the bulletin board with a big sponge, leaving wide, damp streaks of gray across its face. He seemed aware of his importance to the watchers below, and took delight in playing with their hungry curiosity. The board cleaned, he hitched up his trousers with great deliberation, and retired into one of the office windows with the tantalizing air of one who knows the public must await his pleasure. Presently he returned, a chalk-pot and brush in his hand, which he placed on the platform, changing their position once or twice with the nicety of an acrobat adjusting his paraphernalia. Then he turned and gazed contemptuously at the street, as though disdaining to perform for such a pitifully meager assemblage. At last he swung around, struck his head into the window, and shouted some inaudible summons, which was answered by a small boy who handed him a slip of paper. Armed with this, he walked slowly toward the chalk-pot, stirred it with the brush, blew his nose, and rolled up one sleeve. Then he carefully dipped the brush in the pot with his right hand, wiped off the drippings, squinted at the slip of paper in his left, glanced absent-mindedly up the street and painted a large white B. Having performed this feat, he paused to examine his work, assuming the critical attitude that proclaims an artist. Then he glanced knowingly at the throng below, as much as to say: "Don't you wish you knew what was coming?"

"Big," muttered some one in the group, and the others regarded him with something like surprise.

"P-A-I-L," painted the artist.

"Failure," interrupted the clever one.

"MILLING"

The brush paused once or twice before this word was completed, but it suggested nothing to the prophet, who relapsed into silence. The artist touched one or two of the letters and then renewed his work with a sudden burst of energy lest the spectators should anticipate his climax.

"MILLING COMPANIES ASSIGNS."

Leslie gazed at the words as though fascinated by them and the scene before her faded.

The Milling Companies! That was her father's company—the one of which he was vice president! She looked at the faces about her, but stolid indifference was the only expression observable. Surely this could not be the great Milling Companies! Everybody would be shocked if that were so. But the pool did not ooze even a bubble of excitement, and the noisy streams rushed by without the slightest cessation.

It did not seem possible, and yet it must be. They would not dare to publish such a thing about a famous company like that unless it were true. This was, perhaps, the reason of her father's silence and irritation of the previous evening. He had been anxious and in trouble, and she had worried him with idle questions and possibly frustrated some plan by her blind obstinacy. And he had kept silence rather than urge her against her will! All her doubts and fears faded away. She turned without another thought, and flew rather than walked to Mr. Harlan's office in the Consolidated building.

"Dad, dear!" she exclaimed, as the door of the private room closed behind her, "I've just heard about the—the company. Why didn't you tell me? I didn't understand or I wouldn't have bothered you last night. Please, please forgive me. Here, give me a pen."

She seized one as she spoke, took the proxy from her purse and rapidly signed her name.

"Opposite the seal? There! I hope it's not too late. Now kiss me and say you'll never speak to me again as you did last night."

And then, as her father kissed her.

"DAD, DEAR, I'VE JUST HEARD ABOUT THE COMPANY."

Miss Harlan, most inconsiderately, burst into tears.

Meanwhile the artist of Newspaper row was further enlightening his silent, apathetic audience as to the Milling Companies' assignment, by elaborately printing, in generous capitals, "RUMORS OF INSIDE WRECKING."

CHAPTER XXXII.

The strike at the Confederate Machine Companies had been blazoned on the front page of every newspaper the moment it was announced. Special reporters were assigned to interview employers and employed, and every word they vouchsafed was elaborately reported for fully three days. When the story netted two columns, it even earned editorial notice in most of the great dailies. This advised the strikers to maintain order, and assured them that violence would alienate the sympathy of the public. The situation was described as involving "another move on the great chess-board of business." There were also references to "the iron law of supply and demand" and "the great partnership of labor and capital"—phrases at once familiar and comprehensive, if not conclusive. The advice was apparently heeded, for no violence of any kind was attempted. But the news immediately dwindled from two columns to half a column, from half a column to a paragraph, from a paragraph to a "trade-note." The editorial comment ceased long before this disappearing point was reached. The pawns on the great chess-board were left to move or be taken unnoticed. Public interest in the game died when it failed to furnish sensation.

But if public interest in the Confederate strike soon died out, private interest in it remained undiminished. Day after day the men congregated on the railroad embankments above Kennard's factory (now Confederate Companies' shops Nos. 15 and 16), and stood about in groups or sat upon the grass watching the buildings below them. There was not much to see. Not a fire was lighted, not a window was open. The few watchmen patrolling the shops furnished the only evidences of life. No one tried to persuade the workers to return, no communication whatsoever came to them from their employers. It was a strike turned into a lock-out—a somewhat wearisome move in the great game, because there are only three moves for the pawns, two of which are generally impossible. They can find work elsewhere, remain idle, or accept what is offered them. But they must not prevent outsiders from taking their places by means, direct or indirect. That is against the rules of the game. It is merely a question of demand and supply, but there must be no artificial regulation of the supply. The demand may, of course, be increased or diminished by crushing out competition or by closing down this shop and opening that one; but to govern the supply in any such way is plainly illegal (say the injunctions) and as long as it is illegal it must not be done. But the question is, how long can the game continue under these rules? Surely, not very long.

As the days wore on, the loiterers on the railroad embankment grew more restless. They were joined by many locked-out workers from the city, for headquarters had been established at Kennard's to avoid the influences and temptations of the town. To the headquarters came all the idle riff-raff that sympathizes with any movement promising disorder. The leaders soon had all they could attend to. A village dependent upon a daily wage cannot live very long on credit. If the butcher and baker are willing to wait, the packing companies and the flour companies are not, and a halt must be called sooner or later. Want soon made itself felt in the village—want which the contributions from affiliated labor associations could not supply. Strike wages were paid as long as the funds held out, but the ready money available for this purpose was wholly inadequate, and the promises of assistance in the near future were well meant but empty. The leaders worked hard and persistently, but little could be done, and each day saw a gloomier and more impatient gathering on the embankments.

In most strikes there is more or less activity. There is the attempt to replace the strikers, the marching for sympathy or intimidation, the negotiations of delegates, the mass meetings or conferences. But at shops Nos. 15 and 16 there were few or none of these diversions. A delegation did attend at President Harkness' office, to ask whether all workers would be taken back if the reduced scale was accepted, but no reply was returned except a statement in writing to the effect that supposed cases could not be considered; when any state of facts existed it would be dealt with. After this negotiations ceased and monotony reigned supreme. No one took the slightest interest in the strikers or their affairs—neither their former employers nor the public. Day after day passed without incident or even rumor. The men themselves seemed to be talked out, and the groups staring at the idle buildings grew ominously silent.

MAJORITY OF PATIENTS WOMEN

Mrs. Pinkham's Advice Saves Many From this Sad and Costly Experience.

It is a fact but true that every year brings an increase in the number of operations performed upon women in our hospitals. More than three-fourths of the patients lying on those snow white beds are women and girls who are awaiting or recovering from operations made necessary by neglect.

Every one of these patients had plenty of warning that bearing down feeling, pain at the left or right of the womb, nervous exhaustion, pain in the small of the back, leucorrhoea, dizziness, flatulency, displacements of the womb or irregularities. All of these symptoms are indications of an unhealthy condition of the ovaries or womb, and if not heeded the trouble will make headway until the penalty has to be paid by a dangerous operation, and a lifetime of impaired usefulness at best, while in many cases the results are fatal.

The following letter should bring hope to suffering women. Miss Luella Adams, of the Colonnade Hotel, Seattle, Wash., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"About two years ago I was a great sufferer from a severe female trouble, pains and headaches. The doctor prescribed for me and finally told me that I had a tumor on the womb and must undergo an operation if I wanted to get well. I felt that this was my death warrant, but I spent hundreds of dollars for medical help, but the tumor kept growing. Fortunately I corresponded with an aunt in the New England States, and she advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it was said to cure tumors. I did so and immediately began to improve in health, and I was entirely cured, the tumor disappearing entirely, without an operation. I wish every suffering woman would try this great preparation."

Just as surely as Miss Adams was cured of the troubles enumerated in her letter, just so surely will Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cure every woman in the land who suffers from womb troubles, inflammation of the ovaries, kidney troubles, nervous excitability and nervous prostration.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all young women who are ill to write her for free advice. Address, Lynn, Mass.

You can't separate them. And you can't get rid of the backache until you cure the kidney ache.

If the kidneys are well and strong the rest of the system is pretty sure to be in vigorous health.

Doan's Kidney Pills make strong healthy kidneys.

Mr. E. Dillenbeck of 120 Milton avenue, retired farmer, says: "My wife was troubled with kidney complaint for four or five years and complained of pains in the small of the back in the region of the kidneys. The symptoms all indicated that the kidneys were deranged and the doctors who treated her said that those organs caused the disturbance. As she did not get any better we thought Doan's Kidney Pills might give her relief on procuring them at the People's Drug Store, I had her use the remedy. I did for her all that could be expected. We can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills and you can use your names as saying what has been stated above."

SITE OF JERUSALEM

CITY ONCE EXTENDED FAR BEYOND PRESENT WALL.

Intensely Interesting Associations for the Student of Biblical History—Visit to the Famous Pool and Village of Siloam.

As one looks over the site of Jerusalem he very soon perceives that the city is cut off on all sides, save the north and northwest, from the surrounding hills by two deep trenches, the Valley of Hinnom on the west and south, and the Valley of the Kedron on the east. These two valleys are ordinarily dry, but in the rainy season become flooded with rushing waters that unite their currents at the junction of the valleys near the old wall En Rogel, and flow together on through a continuation of the Kedron Valley to the Jordan. It is easy to see how important strategically were these trenches around the city, the ancient walls of the city. On the south the oldest settlement came to the very edge of the cliff that looks down upon the junction of the two valleys and on the western hill the city was extended in Herodian times far to the south beyond the present wall.

Valley of the Sons of Hinnom.

The Valley of the Sons of Hinnom is interesting for many reasons. It was the ancient dumping ground of Jerusalem, where all manner of refuse and debris were heaped, to be burned in those flames that suggested themselves to our Lord as the fitting symbol of the quenchless fire; for the Valley of the Sons of Hinnom is the Gerben Hinnom or Gehenna of Jesus' graphic words, "Where the worm dies not and the fire is not quenched." Along the southern side opposite the open ground which was once built up south of the present wall, runs a series of rock tombs extending up to the little patch of ground called Akeldama, traditionally the "field of blood," associated with Judas' blood money and suicide. In this spot, on a ledge of rock that overhangs the road leading down to En Rogel and Mar Saba, is a Greek monastery which is built over the site of other ancient tombs which are still included within its walls. Just beyond this spot across the junction of the valleys there lies the village of Siloam on the sloping sides of the Mount of Olives, or more properly on that portion of the Mount of Olives to the south, called the Mount of Offense. This is supposed to be the place where the ancient altars to false gods were erected in the times of Solomon and later kings. This village of Siloam is a dirty, unkept settlement which sprawls on the side of the hill and seems on the point of sliding off into the valley below. At its extreme southern end there is a little settlement of lepers, banished to this remote point by public sentiment, and permitted to live about as they please within buildings constructed very much on the community plan for their accommodation. As one threads his way down the bed of the Kedron beyond the well En Rogel in the direction of the Jordan, he has only to look upward to his left to see these wretched creatures sitting in the sun outside their squalid homes, or cultivating in an indifferent way the meager patches of vegetables upon the hillside.

Where Adonijah Feasted.

The Well En Rogel just mentioned is perhaps the Job's Well of Christian tradition, and is near the ill-omened spot where the feast of Adonijah took place when he attempted to secure the kingship in succession to his father, David. It was only when his guests heard the trumpets sounded at the Pool of Gihon further up the valley, where Nathan and Benaiah were proclaiming the accession of Solomon, that the feast broke up in terror and the guests made their way hurriedly and under cover of darkness back to the city.

On the sides of the valley of Kedron which separates the Temple Mount from the Mount of Olives, one passes by the ancient site of the Abbey of Knights of Malta.

King's Gardens, now occupied by fields of artichokes, a vegetable largely cultivated in Palestine. Going northward from the junction of the two valleys, keeping to the left side of the slope of Kedron, one comes soon to the double pool of Siloam, the upper and lower, close together. The upper pool is an opening in the rock, reached by a descent of some dozen or more steps, and forming a small, shallow basin of fresh spring water, fed by the conduit leading from the Virgin's Fountain, a third of a mile up the valley. The lower pool is a large, rectangular walled enclosure, quite open to the sky, and now nearly dry and in ruins. These were the "softly flowing waters of Siloam," which Israel too lightly esteemed, and in place of which the prophet threatened them with the overflowing floods of Assyrian invasion (Isa. 8:6). To this pool the blind man was sent by Jesus, and came again seeing. (John 9:7.)

Ahaz at the Pool of Siloam.

The water supply is now meager, but if the pools were kept in good condition it would be ample. During the reign of Hezekiah this pool was enclosed within the walls, and probably this is the spot referred to in the seventh chapter of Isaiah, where King Ahaz, the predecessor of Hezekiah, is reported to have gone with some attendants to inspect the water supply of the city, in view of the probable siege to which it was soon to be subjected. This conduit of the upper pool is there said to have been in the "highway of the fuller's field." Whether the Pool of Siloam itself is referred to, or the upper pool now known as the Virgin's Fountain, cannot be quite certainly decided, but the two are connected by an underground conduit, and probably this lower one, the Pool of Siloam, is the one visited by the king.

Just inside the narrow rock aperture through which water pours into the smaller of upper pool, is the place where there was discovered the celebrated Siloam inscription, quite the most important and almost the only inscription ever found in the Hebrew language. The water comes from the Virgin's Fountain, another rock fountain a third of a mile farther up the Kedron Valley. It is named in honor of the Virgin Mary, and it is probable that it represents the very ancient Pool of Gihon of Old Testament records.—Herbert L. Willet in Christian Century.

JAPANESE ARE WISE LIVERS.

Take More Care of Their Bodies Than Any People on Earth.

Shake down these elaborate technical exposition of Japanese and Russian tactics, and they can all be comfortably boxed into old Gen. Forrest's phrase, remarks the Saturday Evening Post. The whole theory and practice of war is indeed nothing but how to "git thar fustest with the mostest men." The important inquiry is, How does it occur that the Japanese always arrive first with the most men?

There are several reasons—one is basic: The Japanese have vastly superior powers of physical endurance. They can march all day and fight that same night; they can fight all day and march that same night. And the reason for this superiority is not racial or temperamental, but physiological. The Japanese are a nation of commonsense livers. They eat sparingly and of food that nourishes the body, at the same time giving the least possible amount of waste to clog and overtax the organs of elimination. They take regular breathing exercises. And they do not take stimulants.

In a sentence, more than any other people on the earth, the Japanese keep their bodies in such condition that every nerve and muscle is in use all the time, and so does not collapse when a slight extra task is put upon it.

No Hunting in Palestine.

The late Bishop Beckwith of Georgia was fond of his gun and spent much of his time hunting, says a representative from that state. One day the bishop was out with dog and gun and met a member of his parish whom he reproved for inattention to his religious duties.

"You should attend church and read your Bible," said the bishop. "I do read my Bible, bishop," was the answer, "and I don't find any mention of the apostles going a-shooting." "No," replied the bishop, "the shooting was very bad in Palestine, so they went fishing instead."

Little Graft in Australia.

There does not seem to be much "graft" in Australia. All its public men who have died in recent years died poor. The late Sir George Dibbs, whose will was probated recently, left only about $10,000.

Czar's Body Guard.

It is stated that an "inner circle" of police is to be formed for the protection of the czar. It will consist of five hundred army officers, specially drafted from the service.

Broad-Minded Scotch Sectarian.

A Scotch gamekeeper, a great light in one of the kinks, was asked the difference between the Free and the United Free churches. "Give me the actual difference in a simple form," the inquirer requested after a long lecture from the gamekeeper. "Well, sir," said John, "if you want it plainly it is this: We'll all be saved and they'll all be damned."

The Court's...Indecision

(Original.)

Miss Eleanor Lee had taken her diploma in the law and was hesitating whether she would begin its practice or marry Mr. Thornton Merriman, a lawyer himself with a valuable practice. Mr. Merriman had made a proposition for her hand, intimating that a wife with a husband able to support her would not be justified in entering upon any occupation, except that of taking care of a home. This proposition Miss Lee had declined. One morning as she was getting ready to go out Mr. Merriman called and sent up his card. Miss Lee came down with hat and gloves on.

"I have come," he said, "to speak about the matter of which—" "I believe that matter was settled," she replied, "by my heading down an adverse decision."

"From which I propose to appeal." "I assure you, so far as this case is concerned, I am the court of last resort. There can be no appeal from my decision."

"In that case I beg leave to file a petition for a rehearing."

"Such petitions are a mere formality and usually denied."

"But I am sure the court in this case will grant the petition."

"On the contrary, the court denies it without argument."

"But you have not yet heard the grounds on which I make it."

"What are they?"

"My proposal was made in writing, and I contend that a case of this sort cannot be properly presented by briefs, but needs oral arguments. The omission of these arguments should be held to be an error."

Miss Lee scratched her temple with her gloved finger. She had spent much thought upon her decision and considered her finding to be strictly in accordance with the law. But here was a new view of the case.

"I will take the case under advisement," she said, "and hand down my answer tomorrow evening."

The next evening Mr. Merriman called and got his answer.

"Your petition for a rehearing," she said, "I am loath to grant, having before handing down my decision considered the case in all its bearings and having spent hours of indecision which I do not wish to endure again. But I am convinced that good practice would entitle you to a rehearing. I therefore am compelled to reopen the case and listen to your oral arguments. But I make a counter appeal to you as a man not to subject me to the pain of again deciding adversely."

"You admit then?"

"Your expectation is that I shall forego the pleasure of a strenuous life at the bar to embrace one for which I have no taste, in the nursery."

"I object."

"On what grounds?"

"The case being reopened, it is I who am to be heard, not the court."

"Proceed."

"Marriage is made up of three parts—husband, wife and children."

"In reverse order."

"The point is not essential to this case. The husband's duties are to provide. No man does his part in the aforesaid matrimonial copartnership (see Contracts, volume 2, page 475) unless he is a good provider. No woman does her part unless she takes care of the home and attends to the education of the children. Said children have no responsibilities in the copartnership, said responsibilities in their case coming when they are old enough to marry and have children of their own. Now, in the case of Lee versus Johnston—"

"I care nothing about that case. My brother was very unreasonable, and Bessie Johnston was little more than a wax doll."

"Nevertheless the court held in that case that so long as the party of the second part proposed to delay marriage for three years in order to circumnavigate the globe the party of the first part (her favorite brother) was very badly treated."

"Any evidence on that point would be ruled out as not pertinent in this case. Therefore there is no necessity for denial or affirmation."

"To sum up, the plaintiff in this case makes a fair proposition to the defendant, in which he pledges himself to love, honor and cherish in good fortune and adversity, to be at once friend and lover. All he asks of the defendant is that she will not deprive her family of her care by entering a profession for which I admit she is far better adapted than the plaintiff both by the vigor of her brain and the brilliancy of her talents."

He paused. Miss Lee sat plucking the petals from a chrysanthemum she wore at her girdle. It was evident she had been much impressed with his arguments, but he felt that an immediate verbal decision would be more likely to be in his favor than a written one delivered after consideration. Hesitating between her and laid his hand on hers.

"Far be it from me," he said, "to attempt to influence the court to my side by any underhanded means."

"In this case the means are overhanded."

"I swear—"

"In modern practice witnesses do not kiss the book."

"That if you grant my suit I will—"

"If you propose to take the court into custody it is not necessary to put your arm round the waist. A grip on the bracelet would suffice."

"I rest my case. Do not send me away in an uncertainty. Tell me now that you accept my love, that you will be my wife, that I may work for you, slave for you if necessary, and that you will live for me alone."

"The court finds for the plaintiff," she whispered. F. A. MITCHELL.

Mr. Bowser Is Nurse

Wife Tells of His Tender and Skillful Care When She Had Headache—Brings Her Corned Beef and Sausages. Finally Reads Patient to Sleep.

(Copyright, 1905, by T. C. McClure.)

THE other morning, as soon as Mr. Bowser had departed for the office, the cook came upstairs to inform me that her father had broken a leg, her mother was down with typhoid fever and one of her sisters had been blown up by the kerosene can. She hadn't said anything about it before, not wishing to worry me, but now she felt that she must put on her hat and be off at half an hour's notice.

When a cook's family is all battered up and broken down and blown up and she is feeling that she ought to go home and fall down the cellar stairs and break her neck to keep them company, nothing can be said by the lady who employs her.

I simply assured Mary that my sympathies went out for her and that I hoped she would sober up and be back within a day or two, and away she went. There was the ironing left undone and one of my old headaches coming on, but I set out to do the best I could and let it go at that.

By 3 o'clock in the afternoon I went to bed with such a splitting headache that it seemed as if nails were being driven into my skull, and there was only a slight abatement when Mr. Bowser came up to dinner. I was dreading his arrival. As a rule, when he comes home and finds me in bed he stands before me with folded arms and nods his head, and says:—

"Flat down in bed again, eh? I knew it would come. A woman who goes as he put the dish down. "She always contended that fried sausage was better than any doctor's medicine. As soon as you can eat three or four I believe your headache will entirely disappear."

I think it hurt his feelings a bit because I refused to make an effort, but he soon got over it. Then he remarked that his Aunt Ellen suffered for twenty years with headaches, but finally learned that if she sat propped up in bed they would go away within an hour. I tried it to please him, but was so much worse after fifteen minutes that he agreed that his Aunt Ellen must have had asthma instead of a headache.

He then announced that headaches were caused by too much blood in the head and that if I was bled the relief would be instant. He offered to play surgeon with the corn knife and was considerably put out when I objected. I managed to tell him that I was sleepy, and he said he would go downstairs and get things ready for breakfast. He didn't go at once, however. He spent ten minutes giving me advice as to how to get to sleep and how to stay asleep after I got there, and the experiences of his grandfather, grandmother, mother and Aunt Ellen were given at length to illustrate his points.

How Mr. Bowser got things ready for breakfast I did not learn until next morning. Then I found that he had ground coffee and allspice together, mixed sausage, corned beef, cabbage, oatmeal and sage together for a hash wading around barefoot in the snow or rain must expect to pay for it. Well, you'll get no sympathy out of me."

On this occasion, however, and to my great surprise, he came upstairs with quiet tread and laid a hand on my head and said:—

"You've got one of your old headaches, and I'm mighty sorry for you. As the cook is not to be found downstairs, I suppose she's gone."

"Yes, but it wasn't my fault."

"Of course not. Well, there's no use to worry. I'm not so helpless that I can't pick up a bite for myself. You lie quiet and don't worry."

"But I am sorry to have things all upset in this way, when you come home," I said.

"Never mind, little woman. It's a long time between your headaches, and we'll get along as slick as grease."

There have been occasions when I have had headaches that Mr. Bowser would go whistling and tramping about and banging away at the furnace doors, but this time he carefully avoided making any noise. It was half an hour before he came upstairs again, and then it was to say:—

"What you want is something to eat. A headache is, always, worse on an empty stomach."

He had brought me up some cold corned beef left from the day before, with a liberal slice of bread and butter with jam on it. I turned dizzy at the sight, and it was all I could do to thank him for his kindness and tell him I hoped to have an appetite by and by.

"I will leave it here," he said, "and the minute you feel like eating I hope you will devour every morsel of it. I can stave off a headache every time by filling up with corned beef and sauerkraut. Just let me cool your head for you."

He took a towel and sopped it in cold water and laid it on my head. The water ran down my neck in streams, and he pressed a part of the towel over my mouth till I could hardly breathe, and then he said:—

"You want another quilt on this bed. Always, sweat, a fever, out if you can. I have saved myself from typhoid several times that way."

I was burning up, and needed less cover instead of more, but I couldn't hurt his feelings by saying so. He put on an extra quilt and then insisted on rubbing my feet to get up a circulation.

Every move of his hand went through my head, but I determined to die before making any objections. He lifted me up and turned my pillow over, shaded my eyes from the gas, wet the towel again and asked to look at my tongue, and then departed on tiptoe.

I was dozing when Mr. Bowser came up again, carrying a dish in his hand. I scented the odor of fried sausages and nearly expired.

"I happened to think of what my grandmother used to say," he observed

The Cornerstone.

The cornerstone in truth is laid; The guardian walls of Honor made; The roof of Faith is built above; The fire upon the heart is Love; The rains descend and cloud winds call, This happy house shall never fall.

Lime Good for the Piano.

To prevent a piano suffering from the effects of a damp room, put a small lump of unsalted lime in a bag, and place inside the case.
